REMEMBERING MARCELLUS IN THE CIVIL WAR AFTER 150 YEARS

Submitted by John P. Curtin with excerpts from Nine Mile Country, by Kathryn C. Heffernan

As the shadow of civil war approached, the spirit of abolitionism ran high in Onondaga County. Tradition in the Ramsden and Amidon families has it that the home of John Ramsden, Jr. on Schuyler Road was a station on the underground route by which slaves were helped to escape into Canada.

Companies of Wide Awakes and Lincoln Clubs were in active existence in the county early in 1860, and voter rolls in Marcellus numbered many staunch Whigs who gave their support to the new Republican party and to the candidacy of Abraham Lincoln.

When fighting erupted after the firing on Fort Sumter in 1861, the town of Marcellus responded to the calls for troops and contributed its share to the support of the Union. Patriotism was in the air.

One company had been formed in Syracuse by Captain John G. Butler before the beginning of the war, in 1860, and was sent on immediately after the attack upon Fort Sumpter and formed a part of the 3d New York regiment, which participated in the first battle fought for the defense of the Union. Immediately upon the call for the 75,000 men in April, 1861, the 12th Regiment was raised and sent to the front, to engage at once in active service. Then followed the 101st, a regiment made up partially of Onondaga men, in the fall of 1861.

Following Lincoln's call on July 2, 1862 for 300,000 volunteers, each town in the county was asked to appoint a committee of three to cooperate in recruiting. Enlistments came in rapidly, and the 122nd Regiment, New York Volunteer Infantry, recruited entirely from Onondaga County, was raised in one month. Made up of ten companies, Company F was mainly from the town of Marcellus, and was organized August 15, with Lucius Moses, Captain; George W. Platt, 1st Lieutenant, and James Burton, 2d Lieutenant. The regiment was mustered into the United States service, at Syracuse, August 28, 1862.

Many of the great engagements of the war were participated in by this regiment, and it served until the end, being mustered out on June 27, 1865. The 122nd joined the Army of the Potomac just before the battle of Antietam. They fought at Fredericksburg and Gettysburg, and at the latter found itself next to the 149th, also from Onondaga. For several days after the battle they followed the retreating enemy. It came under General Grant in 1864, and, at Cold Harbor, May 31, suffered terrible losses. Out of 149 men, the regiment lost 75 killed and wounded. It then served under General Sheridan in the Shenandoah Valley at the battle of Winchester. Later they returned to the Army of the Potomac to engage in the fighting at Petersburg and Richmond, and finally, to witness the surrender of General Lee at Appomattox in April of 1865. Many Marcellians were enlisted in this regiment.

The 149th New York Volunteer Infantry was a full regiment of Onondaga County men, organized at Syracuse, and mustered into the United States service September 18, 1862. Company A, of this regiment, was composed of Jewish citizens, organized in the Synagogue; Company B was a solid German company, and Company C consisted of Irish, with but few exceptions. On the 23d of September, 1862, the 149th regiment left Camp White, at Syracuse, en route for the general rendezvous at the National Capital. This regiment was not only at Gettysburg, but in its many battles was the famous one of Lookout Mountain, and also in the Atlanta campaign, where it had three months of almost continuous fighting. The regiment was mustered out June 12, 1865.

The 185th New York Volunteers was the fourth complete regiment of volunteer infantry from Onondaga county, raised late in the war, and composed largely of artisans, farmers, mechanics and professional men. It was its peculiar fortune to be mustered into the service when hard fighting had to be done, which continued with little interruption to the close of the war. Composed of ten companies, this regiment was

From The President ...

Thank you for the prayers and cards for my husband. Joe is improving daily.

Pat Sanborn and I have been working on some family histories together and discovered some interesting information. James B. Seymour along with his father, Henry, purchased the farm on Bishop Hill Road south of the present Lee-Mulroy Road. in 1883. James was a guard at the second inauguration of President Lincoln. Searching the history of Nettie Bemus Eaton, we discovered that L.D. Paul's father, Charles, came from Coleford, England and while in England was a gardener at the Royal Palace. Pat and I both enjoy doing family research and would be happy to assist anyone that would like to do theirs.

We are busy getting the yard in order at the Steadman House and will be doing some new displays. Please come and visit and see all the new artifacts that have been donated. We will be open during Olde Home Days on Saturday from 9-3.

Have a great summer.

Peg Nolan ~

organized at Syracuse and mustered into the service September 22, 1864. On the 23d they left for City Point, where they arrived via Fortress Monroe on the 30th, and were that night ordered into action. It had many important positions in the final engagements of the war, and suffered serious losses. In the desperate charge at Quaker farm, the regiment was credited with saving the day., and the regiment reached Appomattox station before Lee's surrender in April. It was discharged on June 10, 1865.

The 15th and 22d Cavalry were respectively raised and sent from this county. Besides these, Jenney's and Pettit's Batteries and a considerable portion of the 1st Regiment of Light Artillery were furnished from this county in 1861. The 3d New York Cavalry, mustered into service in August, 1861; the 10th Cavalry, December, 1861; the 12th Cavalry, November, 1862; the 20th Cavalry, September, 1863; and the 24th Cavalry, organized at Auburn and mustered in January, 1864, were in part made up by men from Onondaga county. Also part of the 9th New York Heavy Artillery. This county and Cortland furnished eight companies of the 2d Regiment of Ira Harris Light Cavalry, recruited in September and October, 1864. In infantry, besides the full regiments, this county furnished a portion of the 44th New York, mustered in, in 1861; the 75th, 1861; the 86th, 1861; and the 101st, 1861. The 193d Regiment was partly raised here in April, 1865, and the 194th, mustered in, the same spring.

Thus it will be seen that, besides the filling of the complete regiments made up from this county, recruiting was going on briskly here from the beginning to the end of the war. Indeed, it began before the war broke out, and continued so long as a man was needed to complete the last great struggle with the Rebellion in front of Richmond in 1865. We have no means of determining the exact number of men furnished to the Government, first and last, by this county, but the aggregate will no doubt approximate 10,000 men. The county raised about 1,000 men over and above her quota.

During the call for militia on August 4, 1862 the Town of Marcellus was assigned a quota of 90 men who were to serve for nine months, and the County Board of Supervisors authorized the payment of a fifty dollar bounty to each recruit. Apparently, sufficient recruits failed to come forth, and the Town of Marcellus authorized a bond drive to raise money to provide a payment for such volunteers. Cumulative calls for men required persistent and energetic work in recruiting, as well a large expenditure of money in the form of bounties. Toward the end of the war, Onondaga County was borrowing money to pay individual bounties ranging from $300 to $1000. All in all, Onondaga County furnished a total of more than 10,000 for the war effort, and the impact on the Town of Marcellus is reflected in the decline in population from 2908 in 1860 to 2577 in 1865.

Until well after the turn of the 20th century, veterans of the local Joseph Jones Post of the Grand Army of the Republic (G.A.R.) assembled in uniform on each Memorial Day to honor their fallen comrades. A camp fire on the Methodist Church lawn, military drills, speeches, and union religious services highlighted the annual celebration. The New York Volunteers continued to hold annual reunions well into the 20th century.

One of the most colorful of the veterans and one who devoted extraordinary effort to inspiring patriotism in the community and especially in the youth was Belus F. North. North updated the 1850 map of the old Village Cemetery, as well as drew a map of the old St. Francis Xavier Catholic Cemetery on Methodist Hill, and noted and marked the graves of all the veterans. Each year around Memorial Day, it was his custom to walk from district school to district school in the area, stopping to talk to the children and to present a flag to each school. As a member of the 122nd Regiment, North kept records of the proceedings of that regiment's unions, and collected numerous clippings and pictures and other memorabilia. These he left to the Marcellus Free Library.

With the firing upon Fort Sumter, the patriotic women of Onondaga County came promptly to the emergencies of the time. An appeal to the women, through the newspapers, to provide hospital appliances and comforts was made. And the women responded, forming organizations and engaging in the systematic work of preparing bandages, lint and clothing. Many a home was stripped of every old sheet, table cloth and napkin. In April of 1861, there was a general mass meeting of representative women of the county and the Daughters of Liberty was organized, with branches formed in all the churches and throughout the county. Their efforts were truly heroic throughout the war, not only in providing material, clothing, and comfort, but also on the battlefield, as a number would become involved as combat nurses. ~

Henry H. Fellows was the son of Harry Fellows and Mary McCulloch Fellows. His paternal great grandfather was Obil Fellows and his maternal grandfather was Robert McCulloch. He was born August 30, 1837 in the brick house on what is now Falls Road between Frank Gay Road and NE Townline Road in Marcellus.

In 2000, Peg Nolan transcribed all of the handwritten letters from Henry and his brother, George, from 1854 to 1862. They are available at the Steadman House along with memorabilia of the Civil War. Following are excerpts from one of the last letters from Henry probably written on June 18, 1862:

"I hear there has been quite an excitement in Marcellus about my being killed at the Battle of Fair Oaks. I saw the name of Henry Fellows, but I think he belonged to a Term. Regiment. I heard Zeke Sarr say that Mrs. Egleston cried one afternoon over it, but you can tell them I am all right yet and I hope to see this thing through all right. I hear they have sent for the sick ones, that were sent home from the 12th. If you see Mack Veeder you can send those shirts by him, I guess as he will come on the boat and cars nearly all the way to the Regiment. He may receive orders before this reaches you. But I hardly think he will as the Lieut. who is going after them only left yesterday. We have great times here getting Hoe Cake. They are just gay but they cost 10 cents apiece, so a person can't afford to get more than one or two a day. Once in a great while we can get hold of a canteen of milk, for which we have to pay from 25 to 30 cts. but I find it pays cost to have a good cup of Hoe Cake and milk once in a while. It is a change from Hard Tack and coffee. I drew a new pair of pants yesterday and I must go on a hunt for a pair of suspenders, for I packed up my others in the box before leaving Upton Hill. Reinforcements keep coming here from all parts. The 101st are across the river in Keameys Division. Heintzlemans "Camps De Armies" ?? One Div, from McDowalls Army came yesterday, they are across the river on the advance. The Siege of Richmond is going to be one nearly equal to Sebastopol?? and if the Rebs done "Skedaddle" there is going to be some fighting, but I have an idea they will "Hunt their Holes " when the Dirt Digger gets up within a mile or so of their works. They have a great dread of the Steamer Shovels as they call them. Yesterday there was considerable artillery firing going on and I heard today it was to find out the position of the Rebels Masked Batteries. Our pickets advanced and drove in the Rebel Picket and then the Artillery shelled the woods and drew the fire from their Forts. They have the range on them now and when they get ready to advance, M and Secesh will have to look out. As it is near dinner time I shall have to be making tracks for camp or I shall lose my "Bean Soup" which is no small item. I assure you if I hear any news this afternoon, I will write more, but write a little oftener so I can tell whether you are dead or sloped.

Respects to all
Yours

To G.C. Fellows Esq.

H.H. Fellows"
