June 18, 2012 will mark the 200th Anniversary of the beginning of the War of 1812. The above monument is in the Village Cemetery.

Notes: Capt. Eliphett (Eliphalet) Curtis was in the Revolutionary War and died in 1806.

Col. Derastus (Dorastus) Lawrence enlisted in Skaneateles but was listed in the 1820 federal census as a resident of Marcellus.

From The President …

As we move into the summer months we look forward to welcoming more visitors to the Steadman House.

A new display has been added on the history of bowling in Marcellus. If anyone has a particular subject on Marcellus History that they would like put on display please let me know.

Thank you to Helen Newell for the family histories and scrapbook that she has donated to the Society. What a wealth of information she has given us.

We have received our permanent Charter from the NYS Education Dept.
Please stop and visit the history of our town and village at our open house on June 2nd.

Peg Nolan ~

Since our last newsletter with Sustaining members in bold print and New members underlined:

TIME WOUNDS ALL HEELS!
As an architect and Civil War Buff, I look at old buildings and more often than not I can fairly accurately tell when they were built and try to contemplate the history they witnessed. Company F, 122nd NYS Volunteer Regiment was recruited from Marcellus in 1862 and I came across a posted article a few years ago from the homepage of the 122nd re-enactors that told the eye witness account of a Mr. Isaac Clements. He was born in England (1841), but eventually relocated to Tyler Hollow with his parents around 1850, specifically 3290 Sevier Road. He walked 4 miles into the Village to attend school then located behind the Catholic Church on South Street for 4 months each winter, but finally at age 17 moved to Cazenovia to obtain a more complete education at Cazenovia Seminary (Cazenovia College).

He enlisted in 1862 in Marcellus and moved out with his Regiment to Washington D.C. He participated in many battles as a stretcher bearer including Gettysburg and was eventually wounded May 4th 1864 at Wilderness Va. Left behind by the Federals and wounded above the ankle he administered his own tourniquet. Struggling in captivity he had to have his lower leg amputated by overworked and perhaps indifferent Confederate Doctors. Enduring neglect, starvation and finally a lifesaving repatriation in late 1864 he was eventually berthed in a hospital outside Washington D.C. His mother and brother traveled from Marcellus to attend to him with his mother staying on and his brother returning to Marcellus to tend the farm. When he was strong enough, the young Isaac and his mother traveled north by train to Watkins Glen and then to Geneva by steamboat. He describes the kindness of nuns who helped him board the train east to Marcellus. Arriving in Marcellus around 11:00 pm on December 1st 1864 at the old Martisco Station (on the other side of the tracks then) there was no one who could convey them to Tyler Hollow so they spend a difficult night on the hard wooden benches until Clements brother arrived the next day looking for the westbound train. He had come every day to meet westbound trains and never dreamed he and his mother would come from the west.

In Isaac's own words, "Home at last after an absence to two years and three months, filled with labor, fatigue, and suffering. No one can imagine the feeling of relief and comfort that came to me when I was again under my father's roof; the very consciousness of it gave me new vigor and life. As I anticipated, home was just what I need to enable me to improve. I had been without sufficient food for so many months that no amount of food would satisfy me and seemingly I was just as hungry after a meal as before, consequently it was necessary for me to exercise a great deal of self control in refraining from eating more that I ought, as suffering was sure to follow any indiscretion in this respect. Reaching home about the first of December in the fall of 1864 it was nearly spring before I was able to get out of the house very much. However, when physical strength began to return, courage and cheer came back for long bodily weakness had depressed my spirits. The coming of spring with its mild pleasant weather gave me an opportunity to be much in the open air and as a result I began to grow stronger more rapidly. The summer months were spent partly in the village of Marcellus and partly on the farms of my two older brothers who resided about four miles south of the village, doing light work which increased my strength and improved my health."

Isaac Clements went on to be Professor and then President of Cazenovia College. He served as a Trustee in that Village as well as on the Cazenovia School Board. And so the seeds of humble beginnings on a rural farm in Marcellus grew into good deeds as a citizen-soldier and then scholar. Every time I pass this house I think about the beautiful rolling hills that nurtured him and then healed him for the same reasons that drew me here years ago.

For Clements’ complete recitation visit: http://www.122ndnewyork.com/clements.html.
Thanks to Chris Piering of the 122nd NYSV re-enactors for posting the original article.

One Hundred Years Ago in Marcellus

Marcellus Observer May 10, 1912

Marcellus to Have Niagara Power.

That Marcellus will be lighted with Niagara power is settled upon by Mr. Knapp. He has closed the contract with the Syracuse Lighting Co., purchased poles with which to build the line from Camillus and the work will soon be under way, assuring this service, possibly before low water season this summer. His uncertainty has been in undertaking to utilize annually the minimum supply which they sell to a locality, but the Lawless Mills, A. V. Smith and Marcellus Paper Co. will take enough power so that with the lighting for Marcellus village and hoped for increased usage for local power purposes, the joint contract is made possible.

Marcellus Falls

The Smith barley mill is to have a newly built grain elevator. It will probably be operated by electric power from the Niagara line built to Marcellus village.

The saw mill is still busy up on the Lavey place, where he has gotten out lumber for his new barn, sawing in all about 35,000 feet. Before this, Michael Lawless had this saw in operation down on the flat near the old Walker mill, where he sawed a big lot of lumber and 150 cords of stove wood. The lumber is to be used in his new barn and in building an addition to the finishing room of the brick mill. This timber came from trees cut during the winter all along the high bank west of the creek road, which is now almost entirely cleared, improving the view and general appearances greatly.

Action on Martisco Tunnel.

The Syracuse Automobile club has taken up the work of securing better conditions along the Camillus-Marcellus State road. Last week a committee was appointed by the club to confer with S. R. Payne, general superintendent of the N.Y.C. lines, in regard to widening the tunnel under the tracks of the Auburn road at Martisco.

This tunnel, built many years ago, has been considered one of the most dangerous spots on any of the roads around Syracuse and that there has not been an accident there is regarded by automobilists as little short of miraculous.

The tunnel is very narrow, there being only space for one vehicle to pass. The turns in the road at each end make it impossible to see anything approaching.

This road is much traveled. Hundreds of machines pass over it daily as it is the favorite route to Skaneateles and Auburn and is one of the prettiest drives around Syracuse. The road construction between Camillus and Elbridge has diverted a great number of cars to this road, so during the summer great care should be exercised in passing through the tunnel lest some serious accident occurs.

Andrew Henry

Andrew Henry and his wife, Aseneth, are buried in a plot in the northwest section of the village cemetery (next to North Street) with their daughter, Miriam Henry Stone and her husband, Benjamin Franklin Stone. Aseneth Gilmon Millen was the widow of Samuel Millen who died of typhus fever in 1807 at the age of 30. Aseneth and Samuel Millen were married in 1804 and had one daughter, Electa Millen (born in 1806), who married Reuben Lothridge.

Aseneth and Andrew Henry were married in 1811 and Miriam Henry Stone was born about 1814. They had a child who died in infancy in 1816 and another daughter, Jane A. was born about 1817. Other children on the Henry census records have not been identified. Andrew Henry died in 1867 at the age of 82 and Aseneth Henry died in 1862 at the age of 81.

Benjamin Franklin Stone (1812-1890) was the son of Amasa and Clarissa MacKeys Stone and the brother of Horace M. Stone (1815-1895).

According to Dwight Stone’s records, Amasa Stone (born 1786) had a brother, Cyrenus Stone (born 1790), who was a soldier in the War of 1812. He was taken sick at Sackets Harbor, NY in 1812 and died in 1815 in Burlington, Connecticut. In 1820, he was awarded a posthumous grant of 160 acres in Arkansas for his service.

Honest-to-Goodness Friends
By Ella Olmsted

Someone spoke a pleasant word.
Was that someone you?
Someone lightened someone’s load
With a heart sincere and true.
Someone lent a helping hand -
With laughter bright and gay,
And surely you could understand,
Then work would seem like play.
Someone sent a little prayer
Into the azure blue,
And the answer of that prayer
Made one life bright and true.
All have friends that light the road.
All have friends that pray.
All have friends that say kind words
To help us on our way.
They say that we are very poor
When we have no money to spend.
But the richest man I ever knew
Had an honest-to-goodness friend.

Grand Opening at Long Branch.
The leading summer resort in Central New York. The resort is equipped this season with every convenience and is a delightful place to enjoy the summer season. Plenty of amusements, fine music, good boating, etc. For a day’s outing go to Long Branch on Onondaga Lake, Syracuse. Electric cars every 15 minutes from Syracuse terminal. Picnic committees will do well to see Prop. Maurer before making arrangements for their annual outing this season.
